School Board Study Sessions and Work Retreats

The Board of Education is tasked with a constant flow of governance issues that require action and is determined to expedite the business of the District. The Board of Education is also mindful of the importance of planning, brainstorming and thoughtful discussion.

At its discretion, the Board of Education may schedule study sessions or working retreats in order to provide the governance team an opportunity to deliberate without taking action. All study sessions or work retreats shall be open to the public and comply with state open meetings and public record laws.

Generally, study sessions and work retreats are not open to public input. However, the Board of Education may solicit input at the discretion of the Board Chair.
